Bethany Chadwick

Building on her masters in sustainable transport strategies for low income countries.

Bethany recently graduated from the University of Southampton with an integrated Masters in Civil Engineering. For her dissertation, she assessed sustainable transport strategies for low-income countries. She focused up Uganda's local, national, and international transport networks. Following this, she partook in a group design project where we designed a railway tunnel from Hampshire to the Isle of Wight. Her focus now at mode is to further her knowledge and skill in the transport planning field.

At University she was the Vice-President and Coach for the cheerleading team. During this time her team won the National Championships in Manchester!
